and Stuart Averbach

The Apollo mission director to-a news cooference: "We are proceeding with every intention of making a full lunar-landing mission. We did have a successful docking and every iodication is that it was a normal docking."

The spacemen, Capt. Alan B. Shepard jr., Comdr. Edgar D. Mitchell and Maj. Stuart A. Roosa, were asleep at the tima the decision was announced.

The decision clears the way for Capt. Shepard, the senior American spaceman, and Comdr. Mitchell to attempt to land in the ancient Fra Mauro highlands of the moon, Command module pilot Roosa made live unsuccessful attempts to book up with the unmanned lunar module after launching. He succeeded oo the sixth try, There was con-cern that similar problems occur when the lunar shin left the moon and rejoined the command ship.

Mr. Lee said that after extensive testing, we are confident now that the docking probe is good. The cause could have been a foreign particle in sev-eral places that could have prevented the captore latches from operating."

Space officials said they may never find out what caused the problem with the docking probe but that they will cootinue to make tests. They said that if a foreign particla such as dirt or ice was the cause of the malfunction, that particle is gone and it will never be known for sure what happened.

Early today, the astronauts removed the docking mechanism from the tunnel that connects the two ships and tried unsuccessfully for more than an hour to make it fail to work. "It works," Maj. Roosa said finally. "Just real line." Prior to Mr. Lee's decision, skilled seat-of-the-pants flying sayed the mission from its first crisis yesterday.

There was no response for approximately three seconds and then it (the spacecraft panel indicator) went barber pole and back to gray," Capt, Shepard said. It was the signal that docking had been completed. As flight controllers in mis-sion control cheered, Comdr. Cernan said. "Super job, Stu."

How the Docking System Works-But Didn't

By Richard Witkin

CAPE RENNEDY, Feb. 1 (NYT).—The Apollo-14 docking system, made by the North American Rockwell Corp., makes use of a "probe" and a "drogue." The probe is a piston-like device extending from the top of the three-man command ship. The drocue is a conical surface with a small hole in the bottom. It is nestled inside the top of the two-man lunar landing craft The probe, olounted on gimbals, is guided until it finds and penetrates the opening at the bottom-like an opening at the bottom of a funnel.

The probe has a diameter of five inches and the opening has a diameter of three inches. But the opening is big enough to allow the penetration of three "capture" latches on the top of the probe. These are spring-loaded devices three and a half inches

When initial contact between probe and drogue is made, the devices are depressed; when they are through the opening, the springs push them outward again so they cannot be pulled back. After this "soft" docking, a bottle of nitrogen gas is supposed to be activated. Its job is to pull the probe inward toward the command ship until the circular top of the command ship fits snugly inside the circular top of the lunar module.

The union of the two docking rings releases a series of 12 (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

British Government Refuses 8 GIs Die in Day in Vietnam, $4.8 Million to Keep Painting

LONDON, Feb. 1 (Reuters).—The government today turned a blind eye to a request for £2 million ($4.8 million) to keep a famous Velasquez portrait in Britain.

The painting of the Spanish master's mulatto servant, Juan de Pareja, was sold in November to a New York dealer for a world record auction price of £2.31 million ($5,544,000).

Since then, there have been demands in the British art world that the painting remain here.

But tonight, Mrs. Margaret Thatcher, the minister of education, said in the House of Commons that the government had considered and refused a request from the National Gallery for a special grant of £2 million ($4.8 million) to enable it to buy the painting. But Mrs. Thatcher added that the government fully recognized the great merits of the painting. To get the painting out of Britain, the Wildenstein Gallery. of New York needs an export license.

A special government committee on art exports has recommended that an export license be withheld while attempts were made to match Wildenstein's price for the painting. Observers said that the government's refusal was a strong blow to chances of keeping the painting here. If the money cannot be raised by public subscription, the painting will go to America, they said.

Apollo Crew Averts Crisis by Docking

mand craft by "walking" to it from outside the spacecraft in their pressurized suits. Nevertheless, the question about the landing was alive, if only because the ticklish rendezvous and docking above the moon might be a riskier maneuver than anybody fig-

They reported beforehand that the oxygen flow in the command module was higherthan normal but not excessively high." An open valve in the waste management system was said to be responsible and was fixed before the astronauts gan their sleep period.

Caught by Surprise The Apollo-14 docking problem caught everyone—the crew and mission control-by sur-

Shortly after 7 p.m. EST (M00 GMT), the crew reported the command module was moving in slowly to make contact with the funnel-like docking ring on the lunar landing craft. "And we docked," reported Comdr. Mitchell, erroneously.

Minutes later, however, the crew realized they had not comnieted the docking. "Oksy Houston," said Mai Rooss. "We viewed it twice and it sure looks like we're closing in fast enough. I'm going to back out here and try it again. Once again, Comdr. Mitchell reported that three capture atches on the command modnie's probe had failed to make a firm contact, Mission control suggested that the crew try again, and this time keep the probe in position for et least four seconds. That, too, falled. After two more failures, mission controllers suggested that Maj. Roosa try a procedure they really weren't sure would work. Tino Alignment' We're thinking of attempting to dock actually without the aid of the trobe, which requires a pretty fine alignment," Comdr. It required pulling the probe back from an extended position in front of the spacecraft and hoping that at least one of 12 main docking latches would catch and hold the command module and limar lander to gether. During the maneuvering, the crew and mission control came up with two possible reasons for the problem. Maj. Roosa noted three or four scratches latches in a depressed position. More Fuel Used .

The six docking attemptsmade by a crew that had a total of 15 minutes prior experience in space flying (Capt. Shepard's Mercury suborbital flight).... used about 5 percent more fuel than normal. But flight director M.P. (Petc) Frank said the fuel supply is still 17 percent "above the level where we start to get worried."

Flight director Signard A. Sjoberg said the docking problem "Is the only questionable thing about the flight at this time.

He said mission controllers decided to skip a mid-course correction scheduled for early today, as one way to save fuel. He also reported that the redocked spacecraft had successfully jettlsoned the used fourth stage of the Saturn rocket, which is expected to impact on the moon as scheduled at 2:30 am. (0720 GMT)

How the Docking System Works-But Didn't

What happened last night was that the Apollo-14 crew was unable to achieve the soft docking with the probe and drogue. Something was evidently wrong with the three capture latches on the top of the probe..

The crew tried the maneuver five times, and five times it failed. This is when the decision was made, after long space-toground conversations, to try an unorthodox approach. The idea was to aim the command ship at the lunar module in conventional fashion, but to skip the troublesome first step. To do this, the crew was instructed to activate the nitrogen gas bottle et the last moment before the probe would have benstrated This would start a withdrawal of the probe-from the drogue and, it was hoped, enable the top of the command ship to make proper contact with the top of its mate. In that case, the 12 hard-docking latches would be sprung and lock the two craft together. This is apparently what hap-

The two-hour battle with the docking system started at the time in the flight plan when the crew was supposed to go through what is called "transposition and docking."

First, the command ship pulls alightly away from the third stage of the Satura-5 booster rocket, which has the honer module tucked inside. The command ship then flips 180 degrees so that its noss is facing the lunar module. Then it is supposed to dock with the lunar module and pull it free of the rocket shroud.

The Crisis of Manned Flight

the troubles of Apollo-14, following on those more terrifying and dramatic difficulties of Apollo-13, should affect the principle of manned space flight. Indeed, it could be argued that in dealing with their technological problems in full flight, the crews of the two moon missions emphasized the continued need for direct human control of the space machines.

Nevertheless, at a time when the investment in American space ventures is being drastically curtailed, and when the eash, energy and skills still devoted to those ventures are so badly needed here on earth, the frustrations and tensions created by the two latest moon voyages will doubtless have a serious and depressing effect on future manned space programs. This, of course, is coupled with Soviet success in remotecontrolled gadgetry, on the moon and on Venus.

Some very obvious losses would be involved in cutting back on the human element in space. For one thing, men can still function more perceptively than computers in appraising the universe about us-how long may be a matter of doubt; Robert Jastrow gives the human brain about a quarter of a eentury's dominance in this special area. For another, the human personality can provide a comprehensible link between the awesome wonders of space (as well as with

There is really no objective reason why the tools used to discover those wonders) which is missing from Lunokhod.

To be sure, Norman Mailer, who is making a very profitable career out of fitting the cosmos to his personality in public, suggests that the whole process of sending men into space, in a tight capsule of discipline and technology, is itself dehumanizing. But, then, Mr. Mailer would probably have been repelled by far earlier explorers, in far simpler states of technology. It is doubtful, for example, whether he would have approved of the notable selfdiscipline and the mastery of sailing-ship technology which earried James Cook to his triumphs in the Pacific, two centuries ago, Swashbucklers, even then, were far more likely to pile their ships on reefs than addto man's knowledge of his environment.

For mankind as a whole, the best outcome of the current crisis in manned flight would be a pooling of resources by the United States and the Soviet Union, capitalizing on the special advances each has made in competition with the other, reducing costs, and preserving the vital elements of the approaches each has made to the problem. This is not impossible, although difficult. It would require more openness by the Russians, more confidence in them by the Americans. And those qualities would, in themselves, serve a very useful purpose, quite apart from the exploration of space.

Outside Jerusalem's Walls

A mayoral decision to delay construction of new Israeli high-rise housing projects on the hillsides surrounding Jerusalem will be welcomed by all who cherish that historie city and the cause of peace.

Jerusalem is a jewel in a unique setting. The barren, Biblical landscape that largely surrounds the Old City is etched in the historic memory of the followers of three world religions who come to worship at shrines within the city walls.

In spite of his own understandable desire to press ahead with urban expansion, Mayor Kollek has bowed to the protests of a committee of international architects and others and has agreed to hold up construction pending further aesthetic and development studies. This will give Jerusalem a fresh opportunity to grow, as it must, without destroying priceless features that are inseparable from its unique appeal. The mayor has disclaimed any political motivation for his action. But the cessation of construction of predominantly Israeli housing on former Arab lands cannot fail to have some positive influence on the delicate peace negotiations now under way at the United Nations. The significance of this Israeli gesture should not be lost on the Arab capitals or on the Palestinians themselves.

Moving Toward Détente

If there are to be good, indeed friendly . relations between East and West they can only be established between all members of both blocs. The greatest care must be taken to insure that the current political tenet according to which all agreements with the Soviet bloc are to be concluded only "in an empty formula. If we practice solidarity with America in more than mere words and do not lend support to the Sovict divide-andrule policy. Our leading politicians will no longer have cause to lament about criticism from Washington. -From Die Welt (Hamburg).

Britain and the Six

It would be wishful thinking to suppose that the negotiations on British entry to the Common Market are going forward very well. They are not. They are on the right course, certainly. But the lights are set at amber. It is essential for Mr. Geoffrey Rippon, leader of the British negotiating team, to find a way of keeping things moving when he meets the Six again in Brussels today.

His task is none too easy. The basic trouble is that the Six have not yet managed to agree on their negotiating position. The objections now being raised by some of the Six concern various elements in the transitional arrangements proposed for the budget. There is no doubt room for negotiation here. But it would be illogical for the Six to insist that the one and only dispensation to be allowed to new members was a transition period and then to refuse to allow reasonable terms for that transition period. This is precisely the present danger.

A further difficulty for Britain is that while Brussels marks time, public opinion is, at best, uncertain and the situation is unlikely to improve. It was always clear. whether Labor or Conservatives were in power, that the government of the day had to pursue its European policy on two fronts. It had to secure reasonable terms in Brussels. At the same time, no less important, it had to convince the British people of the rightness of its cause in taking the country

Uganda's New Regime

The coup d'état in Uganda is now apparently secure. But the absence of internal resistance is not necessarily proof that the new leaders have strong popular backing. All that it shows is that coups almost by definition are not events which rely on mass participation. Their prevalence in postindependence Africa is due to the very absence of a sophisticated political process in Court and loosed Spiro Agnew on which different interest groups can express and exercise power, Centralized administrations without clear links to the population are always vulnerable to comps d'état.

The larger powers are not going to help much in the long run. It is hard to see just what the Soviet Union and the United States -or even France and Britain-would be prepared to do in the event of secondary breaches of an Arab-Israeli arrangement. This makes it all the more imperative that the local super powers-Egypt and Israelwork out an agreement which will outlive any short-term underwriting from outside ... LONDON.-President Nixon hardly expects support from the young and radical critics of American life. One nevertheless senses disappointment in his administration that those who want change in our society have not given him more credit or even attention for the turn he took in his State of the Union address.

For the President not only. pledged himself to new programs against the American social evils of poverty, sickness and pollution, He faced the political alienation identified by the critics-people's feeling that they are in the grip of distant, and impersonal forces, Why, then, did the Nixon pro-gram seemingly fall short of touching the emotional chord it that have to change. To take an example at hand, Ralph Nader was interviewed the other day by Elleen Shanahan of The New York Times. He proposed number of changes in law to make corporations and their officers more responsive to human desires and more responsible for the consequences of their acts. For instance, he suggested that when an oil company violates drilling safety rules and pours oil into the Gulf of Mexico, its executives should be suspended from their

They have been shifted out of Cambodia, it seems, into the Laotian Panhandle, So still another country must be invaded if the sanctuaries are to be wiped out, and the withdrawal to proceed. American air power, which President Nixon himself said poor in America would make now is needed throughout Southeast

A Partial Brake

It matters also that the Cooper-Church amendment imposes at least some congressional limitations upon the escalation now going on, and its mere existence means that both congressional and public scrutiny of Nixon's war policy will be more searching than, anything applied in the early years of the war in Vietnam—a classic case, perhaps, of locking the barn after the horse has been stolen. Congress, as Sen. J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas has conceded, can do little to make the President desist from his Southeast Asian air war. It is important to remember, therefore, that this air war is not som dreadful natural catastrophe like a typhoon, and that Nixon cannot ask, as Lyndon Johnson used to ask: "What else could I do?" The fact is that the widened million-man South Vietnamese Army can be expected to protect the whole country, once the Americans have left, if they cannot now protect even the American withdrawal. But above all it has to be asked why the policy of Vietnamization, requiring an expanded air war, further invasions of other. countries by the South Vietnamese: and all the wanton destruction and indiscriminate killing that will result—why is Vietnamization to be preferred to negotiated settlement of the war?

How does Vietnamization, rather than negotiation, lead to what Nixon repeatedly refers to as "a bombing of three countries and the invasion of two in order to evacuate one? And to the extent protecting the troop withdrawals requires the bombing of North Victory itself, how can that be a step toward peace when it shatters the only real achievement of the Paris talks the so-called "understanding" by which the bombing was a negotiated settlement in Southcost Asia would require large concessions by Nixon and probably would result in political arrangements for the region that he does not desire. But there is no guarantee whatever that Vietnamization will not ultimately bring equally undesirable or worse con ditions; the chances are that it will. A wider war, more indiscriminate slaughter from the air, the continuing corrosion of American society, the mounting destruction of Southeast Asia—if Nixon really believes that by such costly means a generation of peace can be achieved, he owes it to humanity to explain how.

Portugal's Boeings

What ethical or humanitarian justification is there for the recent sale of two Bosing-707s to Portugal? The action is in opposition to the 1961 U.S. arms embargo to Portugal It is naive to think that Portugal will refrain from using the planes to facilitate the movement of her troops and war materials to her distant colonies in Africa. The U.S. government's approval of such a sale will only increase the blood-shed and hinder self-determination in southern Africa.

But Saks, which is devoting a buge budget to European ready-to-wear, was closing in on Jap too. Not to mention Nei-

Designed by a Japanese fellow named Kenzo, Jap is full of fresh ideas, good boutique stuff with fabric research and imaginative little knits. What's more, buyers don't have to pay = $3.000 to $4.000 entrance fee. Couture's efforts last week could be summed up in one word: shorts. But shorts were all over Paris boutiques and have already been done to death by the ready-to-wear manufacturers. Jap's owner. Gilles Raysse, said the time had come for the ready-to-wear people to start attacking couture. "We've had enough of couture copying us," he said. "Together with Daniel Hechter, Tan Giudicelli (from Mic-Mac) and others, we are going to lodge a complaint with French government officials. For Market

The fur market is really in a fix. After all, a woman who has just spent $1,000 or more to put a new hemline on her mink coat is not going to be very happy when she hears she's démodé. That's why Henri Chombert said: "We furtiers are taking no notice of what the couture is doing. We're staying long." More power to them if they can.

As for Marcel Galem, owner

boutique, he shrugged his shoulders: "There's such confusion in couture today that we'll have to decide what our customers should wear." He in-dicated that be will follow the conservative, elegant Chanel-In French manufacturing cir-

After a French paper headlined Le Retour du Court' (Short skirts are back), ready-to-wear manufacturers (who were forced to hitch on the long look) have been flooded with cancellation letters. It's about time the couturiers should be responsible

The question is: Can they? At least two outstanding Paris designers conceded defeat last week: Courreges, when he said he was giving up the word couture altogether and using a new line called Prototypes instead, and Ungaro. who admitted: "Women no longer want to be told. Paris Dining: Surrounded by the Sea

By Jon Winroth

PARIS, Feb. 1.—Charlot, Le Roi des Coquillages, is seafood personified in the form of a large restaurant on the south side of Place de Clichy, where shellfish emporia abound. There is one next door, another across the way and even one with almost the same name. Charlot ler, although they have nothing to do with each other.

Charles Lombardo, of Marseilles, founded the other Charlot but when he moved his establishment to its present location across and down the square, he neglected to protect the name-honce two Charlots. In any case, he is now retired in Marseilles and his niece Geneviève Firn and her husband Fred run the restaurant.

The feel of the sea surrounds you here from the oyster stand outside to the panoramic murals on both floors. These quiet Breton and Norman harbor scenes painted by Jean-Pierre Remon seem to open the walls onto the very scenes depicted. It does not cross your mind that there are no windows on the ground floor.

The various clams, oysters and the like are fat and succulent, and I cannot remember ever having eaten more tasty lobster. Two large spiny, or clawless, lobsters prepared & la nage were more than enough

This marvellous preparation in no way mutes the rich taste and wonderful texture of the flesh. The lobster is first browned in oll and flamed with cognac and the cooking is fluished in white wine with carrots, onions, cloves, parsley and bay leaf. But this is only one of 40 different seafood dishes. One way to cram as many fish as possible into a meal is to order bouillabaisse, the culinary glory of Marseilles. Six fish—John Dory, red gurpard, weever, boglish, young, turbot and angler (seven, if you add lobster)-are marinated with spices and herbs and boiled with onion, garlic, tomato, saffron and oil. Bouillabaisse is served with garlic-rubbed croutons and rouille, a potent garlic, red pepper, egg and oil

There is also, of course, meat, fowl and game but these are not really what brings people to Charlot.

To accompany the marine bounty, Charlot has some excellent wines. The Sancerre Domaine de la Moussière and the Poully-Fume Les Loges are good light dry whites. The Riesling Léon Beyer also does the job very nicely.

The Homebody Inside the Lyric Soprano

By Naomi Barry

PARIS, Peb. 1.—Victoria de ios Angeles must be a distress to any women's liberation group. The Spanish lyric soprano is the homebody of all

The voice of liquid honey, voluptuously round yet pure. has been a triumph all over the world. If it weren't for the fact that her husband comes along, Miss de los Angeles probably would never accept an engagement. Her recent concerts at the Théâtre de la Ville in Paris drew full houses for five successive evenings. Yet she can still say with conviction. "I never wanted a career. I love to sing, once I am on stage. But I prefer to stay home."

Every day away she is on the phone to Barcelona to speak with ber sons, Juan Enrique, 7, and Alejandro, 3.

"When I sing, I think about them all the time," she said. During her pregnancies, she knitted so many small garments the children weren't abls to wear them all. These days she generally accepts only short contracts so she can be at home at least ten days a month. When she is there, she'd just as soon stay within her own four walls. She Was 16

"I'm not the best manager she could have," said ber husband, Enrique Magrifia. "But I am certainly the most loyal."

They met when she was 16 and had a chaperoned courtship for seven years. Magrifia first saw Victoria in the cafeteris of the university in Barcelons. He was a law student at the time. She was studying at the conservatory but lived at the university, where her father was a caretaker.

"It is good so many years to know each other," said Miss de los Angeles, after 24 years of marriage. "You become used to each other."

Filial responsibility started-one of the most stunning operatic careers of our time. At 17, Victoria sang once a month on the Barcelons radio. Not that she cared about the early recognition. However, the recompense of 75 pesetss was the equivalent of one third of her father's modest salary. This only reason she kept on with the radio was to help out the family.

In 1947, she won first prize at the difficult and prestigious Concours International in Genova. Ohe cried before setting off for Switzerland because there wasn't enough money for a ticket so her mother could come along. After she won the contest. Antonio Ghiringhelli. the managing director of La :

Music in Geneva: 'Eugene Onegin'

By David Stevens

GENEVA Besides being a kind of godfather for the ballet company of the Grand Thastre, George Balanchine has staged Tchaikovsky's opera "Eugene Onegin" here. It is a natural choice, and Halanchine has done this work before elsewhere. There is plenty of dancing, ranging from the polomaise of the final act, and all of these were arranged with the choreogrepher's good humor, and graceful sophistication matching the work's special mood of low-keyed, introspective lyricism. Although the staying itself was basically straightforward, the singers seemed to bave been encouraged to move not only gracefully but meaningfully.

Brokers See a Bull on Wall Street

By Richard Martin NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (AP-DJ).

The overwhelming consensus on Wall Street is that stock prices will rise to record levels before 1971 is over. Brokers who were cantiously optimistic just a few weeks ago are now very

So unanimously optimistic are the analysts, in fact, that a few. market veterans are uneasy. Nonetheless, analysts persist in their opinions. What pleases them most is the marcontinued show of strength despite unrelenting profit-taking during the past few weeks.

Moreover, even on many days when the averages have shown little or no gains, the issues reaching new highs or making small advances have far outnumbered those declining or falling to new lows. Some people are amazed that the rise has heen as broad-bas-ed as it has," said Myron S. Helman, technical market analyst at Shields and Co. "But that is one of the indicators of a hull market."

Rotating Leadership Another hull market characteristic is the rotating market leadership among various groups of stocks. This kind of activity is caused by hig investors selling stocks in which they have profits and moving into other issues they think will rise faster.

Stephen Mousouris, vice-president at J.S. Love & Co., predicts: "The Dow will be [near] 1,000 by the end of this year. That would be a recovery of 58 percent from last May's low of 631,18, and an all-time high for the industrial average.

But Intermittent Selloffs Expected

But nobody expects it to get anywhere near that high with-out some setbacks. Many ana-lysts are looking for a decline of about 40 points and a lot of sideways movement in February, followed by another upward move in the spring. But some analysts have been saving for weeks that a correction is already overdue.

The higher it goes without a correction, the greater the chances are that the least bit of bad economic news could cause widespread profit-taking and hring on a much sharper correction than we could otherwise expect," says Robert Cal-lahan, an institutional analyst, "Without becoming unduly bearish on the economy, we think that a wait-and-see policy makes sense right now," said Louis Stone, economist at CBWL-Hayden Stone Inc. "The hlg question is whether the presumed increase in consumer

Economie Comeback

There is also a growing feeling that the U.S. economic recovery is going to be more vigorous than many people expect. This is based partly on the conviction that the Nixon administration is determined to restore prosperity in time for the 1972 election. But it is also based on the belief that sharp corporate cost-cutting in recent months has laid the foundation for some sharp gains in productivity and profits by midyear. Wall Street is counting on prospects that a sizable flow of new money will he drawn into the market as stocks move higher. "There has been a lot of huying lately by institutions that had too much money and were afraid of missing the market," said Philip Clark, a partner at Burnham & Co. "And there is still a lot of money around on the institutional side to be drawn in."

Mr. Clark expects money to move into common stocks from two other important sources "I think that institution and individuals who hought bonds in 1970 and who traditionally have not been bondholders will be switching hack into stocks," he said. In addition, European investors, who were a major source of new money during 1968 and 1969, hut sold most of their holdings last year, will soon be investing heavily, he said.

Analysis also expect funds from small investors to enter market at an increasing rate over the next few months. Booming Speculation

Michael Metz, analyst at Oppenheimer & Co., said that the hull market is fast developing "into the most speculative market of the past decade." The distinction between the current upturn and those of prior years said, "is that this time the eneculation centers on an imminent husiness upturn" rather than on prospects for specific growth industries or technological companies.

ODERN Are your investments in the "file & forget"category? Do you know what you're missing in ...

MODERN MEXICO?

If you haven't studied investment opportunities in Modern Mexico lately, you're missing your chance to share the high-yield benefits of the controlled economic explosion now going on in Latin America's standout example of responsible government and business. Investigate for yourself: a stable currency (no change in the Mexican peso since 1954-now rated one of the world's strongest currencies). A favorabla trade balance, a long-range expansion program for both industry and capital goods now going full speed ahead. It all adds up to a true "investor's market" with interest yields up to 12% after Mexican taxes (climbs to 15% when you re-invest and compound). Here are effortless "second incomes," a true advance-planned retirement fund, a practical hedge against the erosions of inflation can you afford not to get aboard in time? Below, two examples of what's 12% BANK TIME DEPOSITS: These loans to Mexico's Industrial Devalopment Banks offer 11.25% after taxes (interest payable monthly) on 2 year terms... up to 12% on a 5 year term. Ideal for the person no longer aarning a regular independent income. Minimum investment: $4,000 U. S. Dollars.

9% D€MAND D€POSITS: After Mexican taxes, earning 9% payable quarterly, hare's liquidity for any portfolio. Each Demand Deposit represents a priority claim upon the resources of an Industrial Development Bank. Minimum investment $2.000 U. S. Dollars.

Here's what we now do for our worldwide clients... what we'll be glad to do for you as your alter ego in Modern Mexico:

A full gamut of investment offerings; estate planning; custody and/or administration of Mexican holdings; monthly economic surveys with listing of typical Mexican investments; automated monthly statements and accounting. Want to know more? Without obligation, send for basic investment offerings and procedures... ask us your own specific investment questions. We're ready when you are!

It is our business to make your money grow in Mexico!"

South landed in four hearts, as shown, after North had opened one no-trump. South used Stayman, and then bid three hearts to offer his partner a choice between the no-trump and heart games.

It appears easy to make four hearts. With a routine defense, South's losers are limited to one heart, one club and one spade. But West picked a good moment to underlead an ace, a gambit that has some appeal when as here, the king of the suit is likely to appear in the East shifted to his singleton dismond and West's queen was taken by dummy's ace. All South needed to do at this point was to finesse the heart queen, cash the ace, and surrender a club trick. The poten-tial spade loser would then be discarded on the club king, and ten tricks would be made.

UP THE SANDBOX! By Anne Richardson Rolphe. Simon & Schuster, 155 pp. $499 ... FATHER'S DAY By William Goldman. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. 215 pp. $5.99

Reviewed by Walter Clemons

THESE two utterly different. novels are reviewed to-gether because the coincidence of subject matter is irresistible. A young mother, entering her third pregnancy, watches over her two small children at a playground and explores in fantasy the alternate lives that becken beyond the sandbox, the supermarket and her untidy Upper West Side apartment. A divorced father, his hold on reality loosened by emotional and professional hammerblows, comes unglued and spirals into paranold hallucination when his paranoid nathumation when his little daughter is injured in Central Park during a precious day they spend together. Anna Richardson Roiphe's "Up the Sandbox" is subtle, low-keyed, unflashy. William Goldman's "Father's Day" is blunt, ener-getic and theatrical. The hero of "Father's Day" is Amos McCracken, a Broad-is Amos McCraeken, a Broadway composer who took wife and daughter to Europe to repair a shaky marriage in Goldman's last novel. "The Thing of It Is.." Since then, Goldman has written a free-swinging book about Broadway, which I liked a lot, "The Season," and a phenomenally popular film, "Butch Cassidy and the Sundanes Kid," but Amos hasn't done so well. When we meet him at the start of we meet him at the start of this novel, he has had a disastrous Broadway flop, from which he was fired out of which he was fired out of town; his marriage has come apart and his mistress is leaving him. In the earlier novel he came to terms with his half-Jewish parentage, which he had previously concealed from his wife. "Now I tell elevator men." he remarks to his mistress here. On the way to pick up his daughter for Pather's Day at her school, he gets in fighting-trim for the encounter with his ex-wite by praising Mayor John trim for the encounter with his ex-wile by praising Mayor John V. Lindsay to a taxi driver. He and the little girl embark on a day's wandering from Nathan's (a restaurant-delicat-essen) in Times Square to Central Park, where the accident occurs that tips Amos over the edge into craziness. As he tries to get the child treated and attempts to run away with her attempts to run away with her to Piorida, entire episodes realistically described prove not to have happened except in

Because Goldman is thoroughly professional, "Father's Day" moves fast and has high readability. But it doesn't all work. He hasn't avoided stickiness in portraying the father-and-daughter games of make-believe in which Amos dons the mask of a Frenchman named Pierre. What he writes best are abrasive sexual quarrels and edgy showbiz dialogus (particularly a stinging flashback to Amos's betrayal during the tryout of his musical, and a later cucounter with his homosexual excollaborator). Amos isn't. of course, Goldman, but they share an inability to pass up a good one-liner. "You think this ca he fixed up okay?" whisper orderly, who comes right bac with a singer I sternly doubter even as I enjoyed it, the char acter would have uttered.

Anne Richardson Roiphe pub-lished a neatly designed for novel, "Digging Out," that mad me look forward to her second "Up the Sandbox!" is very good particularly in the quiet wa it holds attention when nothing seems to be happening. The heroine conceives a child in the first chapter, though the, an we, don't know it for sure unit the book's end. The novel the book's end. The novel pattern is a waiting—not, a we first expect, a vandevill alternation of real life an apported daydream. This isn't a feminist "Secret Life of Waite Mitty" or a novelization of Einer Rice's "Dream Girl, though the book is built on a absuration between Margare Reynolds's trips to the part Reynolds's trips to the park to the market, home to be messy spartment, her busband research and his fury at catch ing a summer cold ("He starte to complain: The bad timing o his cold, the injuttice that h slone should be struck")—and her dream life, blowing up the George Washington Bridge with George Washington Bridge with her black lover interviewing Castro in Cuba, serving as miracle-worker in a ghett hospital, flying off to Vietnam The puzzling, original thing is that these fentasies aren carteons or blackout sketche.

but are as detailed, as sensitive as critical as the heroine observations of her everyday life. Of course the daydream are funny, when the dreamer imagination betrays her int desperate improvisations (the Vietnam nun's martyrdom in a bathtub full of piranha fish a nice one), but easy slapstici is not what Mrs. Roiphe is up to. I don't think anybody before her has invented an intel fore her has invented an intelligent woman and follower through by inventing equally intelligent facialises for her.

Nixon's Game Plan

WASHINGTON .- It is now clear to everyone in Washington what President Nixon's Game Plan for 1972 will be. It was all decided at a topsecret meeting of leading Republican strategists in Behe Rebozo's basement at Key Bla-cavne. Everyone spoke his mind.

"It's obvious," one Republican pol said, "that attacking stu-dents, while very popular with the electorate, does not produce votes." "We also know that permissiveness and pornograpby are not the gut issues we thought they were." another strategist said. We damn sure can't ralse the law-and-order problem after being in office for four years."

"And we know the Southern strategy laid one of the big eggs of all time."

"We've got to come up with something that the people really feel strongly about." "But wbat's left?" someone asked in desperation. "Gentlemen." a party member said, "we have taken a survey and we have discovered the one thing that bothers the American people more than anything

"What is It?" "The U.S. government."

U.S. Military Sets 'Black Hair Care'

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 1 (NYT). -A group of 49 military harbers and beauticians returned to their bases across the United States and in the Far East this week, prepared to start a black hair-styling program among the Negro enlisted men and women nf their units.

Each carried a framed certificate signed by Willie Lee Morrow, a Negro hair stylist, stating that he was a graduate of the military's "black hair care program" and qualified to give Negro personnel Afro-natural hair treatment.

Military dress and grooming regulations as applied to the Afro hair styles have been a point of friction with many Negro members of the armed

The government? "That's correct. The people are even madder at the government than they are at their own rids. They blame the govern-ment for everything that is wrong in the country. Wall Street, labor, the farmers, the ethnic groups and even people in civil service are sore at the government."

"Are you suggesting Nixon run against the government?" "Exactly. I propose we attack the government with the same vigor we attacked the doves, the intellectuals and Senator Goodell. Our Game Plan will be to prove to the American people that the government is not responsive to the needs of the

"But we are the government," someone protested. "At least, we will have been the government for four years."

"All the more reason to attack it. If we say the govern-ment is no good, there isn't a person in this country who will not support us."

"We'll need a slogan, What about 'Power to the People'?" "That's an inspiration."

"We could call for a revolution," someone said excitedly. "Can't you just see Agnew going out across the country making chopped meat out of the bureaucrats?"

"We could bold anti-government demonstrations with Bob Hope, John Wayne and Frank Sinatra."

"Billy Graham could organize a march on Washington."
"We could have Ronald Reagan burn his Social Security

"Martha Mitchell could stage a sit-in at the Pentagon." "The possibilities are endless gentlemen. Then we're all agreed that the strategy for 72 is an all-out attack on the American government?" There wasn't a dissenting voice in the room. President Nixon, who was waiting nervously in the next room, bought the idea immediately. A few weeks later he fired the first salvo when he said, in his State of the Union message, 'Let'e face it, Most Americans today are simply fed up with the government at all They will not ... and should not... continue to toler-ate the gap between promise and performance." Everyone in Bebe Rebozo's basement smiled.

'Offered a chance to watch the Cleveland Browns play, the Russians instead asked to see how an American capitalist lived. Mr. Eaton agreed to receive the group on short notice and enjoyed the experience.

Cyrus S. Eaton at 87

By Murray Seeger

WASHINGTON.—The original John D. Rockefeller and Henry Ford are long gone, along with Harvey S. Firestone, E. H. Gary and Samuel Insull. But Cyrus S. Eaton, who knew and worked with them all, goes on.

On Dec. 27, the multimillionaire celehrated his 87th birthday by making his first trip to Chile to see the country and interview the leaders of its new Socialist government. He continues his communications with leaders of the Soviet Union and Eastern bloc countries and his persistent efforts in opposition to U.S. involvement in Vietnam and the rest of Indochina,

Mr. Eaton was in Baltimore about a week ago to preside over a board of directors meeting of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, one of the nation's few profitable railroads and the keystone to his fortune. The week before he was in Chicago for a meeting of the trustees of the University of Chicago.

Every morning at 8, when he is not traveling, he can be found on the 36th floor of the Terminal Tower in Cleveland. From there he can see the physical evidence of a large portion of the com-panies he created in his long industrial

At home, Mr. Eaton is engaged in running legal battles with two of the biggest local institutions in which he once had major investments-the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. and the Cleveland

The power company chopped down 450 oak trees on Mr. Eaton'e beloved Acadia farm south of Cleveland to build a power line. Mr. Eaton claimed the company, which he once served as a director, exceeded its rights under a 1962 agreement he signed to permit construction of a power line. He is also engaged in a long-running legal hattle with the area's largest bank, where he was also a director, over its power to act as trustee for Looking remarkably fit, Mr. Eaton spent a day in Washington recently, taking time out to reminisce on his long business career. "I first came to Washington in 1906," he recalled. Theodore Roosevelt was then President and Mr. Eaton was interested in the city's power company which operated under a congressional franchise. Although he is known best now for his anti-war activities, controversial travels and associations with Marxists, Mr. Eaton in the 1920s and 1930s developed a reputation as a capitalistic buccaneer. This history is one reason why the modern criticism has neither surprised

His Christmas trip to Chile was comparable to a trip he made the year before to Hanoi to see the North Vietnam leaders and a 1968 birthday venture to Havana when he met Fidel Castro.

The gray-haired, hlue-eyed industrialist first became interested in conducting his personal campaign to improve world communications in 1955 when a group of Russian journalists were brought to Cleveland as part of a State Department

Offered a chance to watch the Cleveland Browns play, the Russians instead asked to see how an American capitalist lived. Mr. Eaton agreed to receive the group short notice and enjoyed the experience.

He established the Pugwash International Conferences in 1957, inviting a wide assortment of intellectuals to as semble for a free-wheeling discussion of world topics at the small Nova Scotia town where Mr. Eaton was raised and where he still owns a farm. The meetings have continued regularly in different locations around the world with the last one held in September at Fontana, Wis.

Mr. Eaton helped arrange trips to the United States for former Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and Premier Alexel N. Kosygin and has visited the Kremlin. leaders in Moscow several times. In 1961, the Soviet Union awarded him its Lenin Peace Prize for "unremitting efforts to bring about better international understanding."

Mr. Eaton is helping the Russians buy 30,000 head of first class cattle from U.S. breeders and 10,000 head from Canadian breeders in order to speed the development of better beef in the Soviet Union.

Through Tower International, a Cleveland-based company headed by Cyrus S. Eaton jr. and Donald S. Carnichael, Mr. Eaton has made inves in the Soviet bloc countries and is trying to expand East-West trade.

He has withdrawn from most of his other business activities, resigning in recent months from the boards of Detroit Steel, Cleveland Cliffs Iron, Sherwin-Williams Paint, Cleveland Electric, Kansas City Power and Light, Baltimore and Ohin Railroad and Steep Rock Iron Mines.

Mr. Eaton's business life has been centered in the Middle West ever since 1900 when he arrived in Cleveland to visit an uncle who was pastor of the Baptist Church attended by John D. The Rockefellers betriended Mr. Eaton, employing him as a clerk and companion until he graduated from McMaster University in Toronto in 1905.

After the Rockefellers left Cleveland, where they had started the original Standard Oil Co., Mr. Eaton struck off on his own, working first with the East Ohio Gas Co. and then forming Canada Gas and Electric Corp.

The next decades saw Mr. Eaton expand his utility interests, form Republic Steel Corp. from several smaller regional companies, and help form Cleveland Cliffs, Sherwin-Williams, National Acme and several other steel companies. He controlled Goodyear Tire and Rubber at one point and has also had big interests in B.F. Goodrich and Firestone. A Republican until 1932, Mr. Eaton left the GOP over the issue of insuring bank deposits. "I knew Herbert Hoover very well" he recalled. "I used to play medicine ball with him in the morning. I had him convinced that bank deposits had to he insured, but Wall Street would not go along with it. I decided the Republican party was stuck in its ways. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. was the first act passed under Franklin D. Roosevelt." C Los Angeles Times
